UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

Introduction

The United Kingdom Government has signed the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and has also signed up to the optional protocol. This means that it will need to report periodically to the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. It also means persons with disabilities can make individual complaints to the Committee. You can find out how to do so online at Web: www.un.org/disabilities

Guiding Principles of the Convention

- a. Respect for inherent dignity, individual autonomy including the freedom to make one's own choices, and independence of persons
- b. Non-discrimination
- c. Full and effective participation and inclusion in society
- d. Respect for difference and acceptance of persons with disabilities as part of human diversity and humanity
- e. Equality of opportunity
- f. Accessibility
- g. Equality between men and women; and
- h. Respect for the evolving capacities of children with disabilities and respect for the right of children with disabilities to preserve their identities.

Who qualifies for protection?

Article 1 states that: 'persons with disabilities include those who have long-term physical, mental, intellectual or sensory impairments which in interaction with various barriers may hinder their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others'.
